LEVEL-HEADED

“The real human contact of family law is what keeps me going. I am not fighting over textile qualities or a bad shipment. I am advocating the rights of families. Sometimes when parents are going through a hard time, they cannot see what is happening to their children in the process. Or sometimes when parties are fighting just to fight, they leave logic and common sense out of the equation. I’m the level-headed one in the equation.”

KARMA

“I am a true believer in karma and that we should give as freely as we receive. With those principals in mind, I find myself in service to others and consider every new case as a new opportunity to give back.”

CLIENT GRATITUDE

“When I get cards, letters, pictures or flowers from my clients, thanking me, I know I did something right.”

JAPANESE PROVERB

“I’m influenced by my mother, my grandmother and the proverb: ‘fall down seven times, get up eight.’”

THIS YEAR

“I want to expand my practice—take things to the next level and be more accessible to prospective clients.”
